

Extension Is All Light

Builder Andy Murray has extended the Ecclesall home of Mr and Mrs Verity

Andy Murray (right) is a highly skilled joiner and builder with over 30 years' experience. He specialises in extensions, internal alterations, and loft conversions - offering a professional service, from design-and-build through to completion. Andy never requests payment in advance, and can provide many client references.

Andy Murray and his team were called to the property you see here. It is in Ecclesall, where the owners, Mr and Mrs Verity, wanted to replace their small rear extension with a much larger one that would open onto their garden.

Demolition of old extension. The property was built in the 1930s, and had a small rear extension added sometime in the last 30 years. Its dining room was dark, and the kitchen quite small. Andy demolished the old extension, then began preparing foundations.

Light and spacious. The new extension is more than double the size of the old one, spanning the width of the house. It has made the dining room much brighter, partly thanks to four Velux roof windows. Andy matched the bricks, rendering and rosemary tiles of the extension with the main part of the house.

Garden views. French doors and matching windows give super views across the garden, which is exactly what Mr and Mrs Verity wanted.

Finished on schedule. Andy completed the extension when he said he would, in under eight weeks.

Says Mrs Verity: "We wanted an extension that would let us see our garden, and allow lots of light into the house. We received three quotes for the work, including one from Andy Murray, who we had read about in Grapevine. His price was competitive, but the main reason we chose him was because we felt confident he was the right person for the job.

"He and his men were really nice, clean and tidy. They were not at all intrusive. We are very happy with our new extension."
