Andy Murray transformed the dark and dusty loft space of Simon and Celia Keefe's Lodge Moor home loft into a superb bedroom and shower area

If you need more room in your home - look upwards. A loft conversion by builder Andy Murray can give you plenty of extra space. He and his team are experts at such projects, as they recently proved in Lodge Moor, when working at the three-bedroomed home of Simon and Celia Keefe

Theirs is a 1950s property, and they asked Andy to convert its loft into a bedroom and shower area for their son, Abraham.

After Andy came up with a plan for the shower area was created. The job was completed on time, in seven weeks, much to the delight of the Keefe family.

Says Simon: "Andy and his team have done a fantastic job with our loft conversion. We called a number of firms to quote for the work, but when we spoke to Andy he gave us confidence he would do a good job.

"He was the only builder who seemed genuinely interested in the work - and was prepared to put a lot of thought into the design. He gave us references from many people he'd worked for, and when we spoke to some of them they rated his skills very highly - and now so do we.

"He is meticulous in his preparation, and treated our job as if he was working on his own home. His price was very competitive."

renovation, he took care of planning and building permission, then set to work. He and his men do their best to create as much space as possible, and with this in mind removed the loft's chimney breast, and fitted steel supports to support roof and floor. Partition walls were installed, and all electrical, plumbing, joinery and plastering was undertaken.

For extra light, a dormer window was fitted to one side of the loft's roof, and three Velux windows on the other. A smaller window was created in the gable end - where the separate alterations - a new bathroom or kitchen - through to house extensions. Andy will visit you to discuss ideas, then come up with architect's drawings, and a breakdown of costs. He takes care of planning and building permits.
